Today's parade, an annual event now in its sixth year, kicks off at 5 p.m. Participants, many dressed in period costume, are expected to gather at the statue of Kate Sessions near the Laurel Street Bridge and march to the Spreckels Organ Pavilion...

Women were allowed to vote in California nine years before they could go to the polls in national elections. That followed a vigorous campaign that began in the late 1800s, bringing Susan B. Anthony to San Diego.

The leader of the women's suffrage movement in San Diego was Dr. Charlotte Baker, the region's first female physician, according to Ashley Gardner of the Women's Museum of California, which is helping to coordinate the parade.

The highlight of her campaign was a three-day driving tour to outlying communities such as Oceanside, Fallbrook and Ramona by three suffragists led by Baker, over rough and dusty roads -- in a car driven by a girl who was about 16 years old, Gardner said.

She said they believed that rural men would approve of a woman's right to vote because they toiled in the fields together.

"Rural men really appreciated the idea of women as equal partners," Gardner said.

Outlying areas ended up providing the key votes that passed a measure to allow women to vote in California, according to the San Diego History Center.

I remember on The Man Show years back the hosts had a petition booth set up outside of a mall and they were asking people to "Stop Women's Suffrage."
So many people signed thinking it was related to suffering. Pretty funny even though that show sucked.

Let's not forget that of the two parties asking for your vote, right NOW (not 100 years ago), one party doesn't believe women have the right to decide what is best for their bodies. The Republicans held a Congressional Hearing, dealing with women's contraception, and refused to allow any women to speak. Refused!

Republicans also think that, if your wife or daughter should be brutally raped by a convicted felon or an illegal immigrant, that's just too bad; she must be forced to give birth to this child.

These (and thousands of others) positions are mind boggling to me. I guess Republicans think we live in the year 1900, not 2012.

Ok, your turn, Whacky. Remember, I posted facts. Can you do the same?

Let not these ladies forget that the President who jailed the Suffragette protesters in 1920 was Woodrow Wilson, of the Progressive Party, now know as the Democrats.
